Message to North Orange County Chess Parents/Players:

I am pleased that I was able to convince Joe Hanley, an experienced and well-respected chess instructor, to offer chess workshops to interested and talented students to help to develop their chess game to its full potential. This is an opportunity that we have not offered to our local chess players in the past.

Joe is the owner of the Hanley Chess Academy in Irvine. His classes include beginners, intermediate and advanced students, and are organized to offer a challenging experience to each player, regardless of level of skill. His classes include instruction, the opportunity to earn a United States Chess Federation Players (USCF) rating, to play rated players, and to have their games reviewed by Joe. Note that a USCF rating qualifies you to play in USCF-rated tournaments.

I strongly recommend that you and your student avail yourselves of this opportunity. Chess – the oldest and most widely internationally played game in the world – is a wonderful game. Beside a great way to have fun, it is good way to develop life-skills (the ability to concentrate, strategic thinking, and sportsmanship) that will yield benefits for a life-time.

And the best part – the better you play, the more you will enjoy it!
